

The Blue Basket

Unit 1 • Week 1 • Monday Storytelling

On Monday morning, Maya walked into her new classroom and looked all around. There were blocks on a shelf, crayons in a cup, books in a basket, and soft playdough waiting at a table.

Maya wanted to draw a picture, so she chose a blue crayon. She drew her family, her house, and a big yellow sun. When she finished, Maya looked at the table. The crayons were still spread everywhere.

“Where does the blue crayon go?” Maya wondered.

Her teacher pointed to a blue basket on the shelf. Maya put the crayon inside. Then she noticed two more crayons on the table and put those away too.

A friend named Leo was cleaning up playdough nearby. Maya carried the empty playdough tray to him. Together, they put everything back where it belonged.

Maya smiled. She was learning something important about her new classroom: everyone could help take care of it.

When the room was ready again, Maya and Leo looked at each other and grinned.

“We did it together!” Maya said.
